ARMAGNACS & COGNACS

Armagnac and Cognac derive from the Dutch term brandywijn, or burnt wine. The Dutch practice the art of distillation in order to avoid the spoilage that often afflicted their wine during the long journey back to Holland.

Armagnac is an eau-de-vie produced in Gascony in the southwest of France. Wine made from Ugni Blanc and occasionally Folle Blanche grapes is distilled once in a continuous still, producing a rich, full brandy. Cognac, from the Charente Valley, is double distilled in a pot still, a process that is said to have originated in a dream where the devil threatens to "twice boil a knight's body in order to extract his soul." The dreamer awakes and decides to distill his brandy in order to "extract its soul." Both Cognac and Armagnac are aged in oak barrels.

On the palate, Cognac displays great complexity, balance and nuance—like light dancing in a chandelier. Armagnac is exuberant and occasionally a little gruff, acknowledging its origins in fire and earth.

L'Espirit Courvoisier $300.00 / pour

A unique fusion of legendary aged Cognacs which have never before been available to the public or collectors, none of which are younger than the 1930's and the oldest of which date back nearly two centuries to the dawn of the 1800's and the private kegs of Napoleon I. The Grill Bar has the only bottle in the state and one of only 54 throughout the United States.

SINGLE MALT SCOTCH

Voted Best Single Malt Scotch List by MPLS/STPAUL Magazine

The exact origins of Scotch are unknown. Originally called Uisge beatha or aua vitae (the Latin for "Water of Life"). Tradition has it that the secrets of distilling came to Scotland from Ireland, and were introduced there by St. Patrick in the 400's A.D. There are traditionally four distilling regions: Lowland, Highland, Islay and Campbeltown. The St. Paul Grill encourages you to enjoy the differences each region offers!

Three Spanish Cherry Casks were chosen and filled on the same day...14th January, 1949... and have been matured in Speyside over the last 50 years. 48% was left when tapped, so the angels have certainly got their money's worth. Only one of three bottles in the state.
